"ARE THE ITALIANS a menace?" asks a pamphlet. Oh dear, no! The several police-officers supposed to have been shot by "dagoes" undoubtedly perished of a little harmless heart-failure or something of that trivial nature.

TERSENESS ON THE BENCH.

THE JUSTICE—"It looks to me more like a case of wine. Ten dollars."

THE VICTORY IN '92.

THE OFF YEARS are generally damaging to the party in national power that expects too much. It is never well to expect more than a little, and then you are more or less likely to be gratified. The people in these years have a way of checking pride, and of so dividing up victories that the outs may have about as much consolation as the ins. Sometimes more. Occasionally considerably more. We had removed our hat preparatory to a great cheer, but the cheer relapses into that slight concentration of mouth and facial muscle which answers for a subdued, though not a sickly, smile. However, so much the more work for the Republicans in 1892—and they'll do it.

OUR LITTLE TIN TURVEYDROP.

TO BELONG of right to good society, according to the McAllister, one must know the good points of horses, of dresses and of dinners. That is to say, he must outdo his hostler, his tailor and his cook; and if he cannot in an emergency, or as a matter of choice, don the square cap and the white apron to get up his own dishes, and subsequently the dress-coat to see as head-waiter to their distribution, he is no gentleman and must gnash his teeth in the outer darkness when he is empty in not only his patrician head but his plebeian stomach. The duties of the true society man as a watcher on the house-top and in the drawing-room in behalf of the little and large proprieties are therefore as large in bulk as they are infinitesimal in detail; and nobody but he or a woman could attend to them satisfactorily and still live. Think of carrying in one small head the tabulated ingredients of a score of mustarded and custarded delicacies, at the same time that the head is obliged to look out for the necessary small talk, the intricacies of a dozen dances, the management of the band, and the thousand other complicated and mysterious things that only the accomplished society man is obliged to understand! We should think that man would die. Perhaps he does. Having once learned his duties, he might die without knowing it, and go on with the duties without anybody else knowing it—for he is as thorough a nonentity as he struggles to make himself, and but for his pose would count for nothing in any circle or census report.

DAVID AND THE CENSUS.

HIGH ABOVE the hubbub of the winning and defeated ballots, above the vanishing contentions of election, is still heard the moan of Governor Hill over the frustrated effort of Grant in demanding a census recount in New York city. That the police count shows a large increase is beyond question. The inspiration, with or without instruction, was to have it so. When the uniformed enumerators called and reported the swollen autumn population of the hotels as New York residents is it any wonder, with a city that absorbed without strain three quarters of a million visitors in the centennial, that it would show without a ripple in October the larger part of the discovered two hundred thousand now claimed? The query is, was the early summer census, or this one of later revision, the correct one? Are the autumnal business visitors that flock to the city to be considered as residents, and recounted as such, having once been tallied in the rural enumeration? Would not this involuntary capita become the innocent repeaters for an intended additional Democratic representation? Are these human swallows, these birds of passage and their added broods, to be counted in the country once and in the interval of time unjustly counted in the city again? While there is little ground for suspicion that the federal count was flavored with partisanship and clipped by political cutlery, there is little doubt that a more abhorrent motive stirred the new enumerators of Tammany not to overlook the shifting city accessions and also its recent addition of those Canadian exiles who have guided its policy and benefited by its methods. Its leaders, from inherent consciousness, would impute to the cleanest purpose a suspicion of fraud.

Has Governor Hill, who now asks a new count and claims its cost is immaterial, forgotten how he stultifies himself, as the one who five years ago barred by veto the census of the state, ostensibly on the cheap pretext of expense? It was well known then that the real bugaboo that frightened him was the fear of a political advantage through the appointment of enumerators by a Republican secretary of state—a fear that it might evolve a strong and possibly successful gubernatorial competitor! It was not anxiety on account of expense that spurred "David B.'s" oposition to a census method that had been sanctioned by the precedent approvals of Seymour and Tilden. It was simply the nightmare of a political ghost that he saw, or thought he saw, pulling away the gubernatorial chair. Does this protest, does any protest, come with fair grace from a political blunderer who for himself and against the interest of his party frustrated a new apportionment that would possibly have changed the Democratic future in the state—possibly have given the party of "inertia" a United States senator, the state an enlarged Tammany administration, and possibly have extended a similar misfortune to federal affairs? The governor's scare was an unintentional national benefaction.

† † †

A recount now, five months after the first, is impracticable because unjust. If conceded to New York the precedent is good for any other city, in fact for the United States, and a series of growls would run with echoing demands for rectification from sea to sea. J. A.

ALL BUSINESS.

MISS DEL ORME—"Don't look at them. It's a pity to break in on his proposal."
PARDINGTON—"'Proposal' is extremely good. Why, that's young Junkins, the wholesale druggist's son, explaining the advantages of a chest-protector he has just invented."

THE INVENTOR of a fire-extinguisher is dead. Now he can see how it is himself.

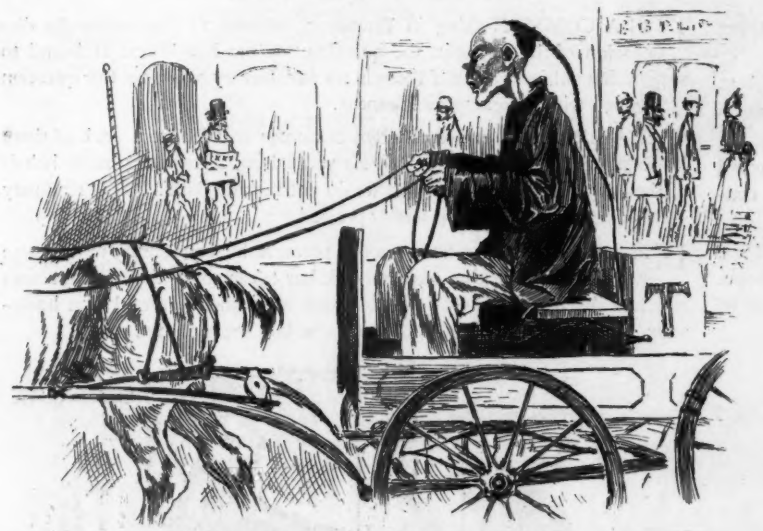
* * *

THE SPELLBINDER is going about with a lighted lantern and a magnifying-glass, searching for his occupation.

* * *

IT COSTS twenty thousand dollars to send a young lady into society in New York, and this doesn't include the charges of the McAllister.

A PROVISION OF NATURE.



LONG CHIN—"No whip, heap horsee lazy."

SOME FOREIGN COUNTRIES that threaten retaliation for the McKinley law discover, on mature reflection, that their retaliation began so long ago that ours was an unavoidable result of it. The second thought, how beautiful it is!

* * *

QUEEN VICTORIA'S hand is so big that she is compelled to wear a seven-and-a-half glove. The size of her hand is probably due to the exercise it has had in clinging to the crown to prevent Albert Edward from running off with it.—Chicago Times.

Very likely; because she—she evidently never used the hand, even with a slipper in it, on A. E. when his nibs was a baby or a boy.

'RAH FOR BEET-SUGAR!

JERRY RUSK is enthusiastic over the eventual success of American cattle and hogs in foreign countries; but he is more particularly happy over the success of experiments in behalf of the beet-sugar industry. We call the attention of the farmers' alliance to the fact that Jerry would peradventure like to be president himself. As a dark horse, indeed, you can hear his heels click during every interval of political silence, and presently he will paw the ground till you can't see him for the dust he raises.

MISSIONARIES NEEDED.

SOME BENEVOLENT, religious and charitable people of Chicago recently made a festive day for the city waifs, one of the principal features of amusement and edification being a race for a greased pig, which was finally taken in hand so torn and bleeding that it was in mercy bought and killed by a spectator. We are going to a great deal of pains and expense to enlighten the Japanese. Are there not some natives of that flowery kingdom who would come to us and teach us the elements of decency, not to say humanity? It is difficult to civilize a people born to a civilization which by their own acts they degrade.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

THE STERNEST event in the Pennsylvania campaign is this Republican poetical appeal printed by our esteemed contemporary, the Philadelphia Inquirer:

"Stand by your guns! Don't run at the first fire;
Our candidates will prove themselves worthy of their sires.
And when the ship of state comes sailing 'round the bend,
Carrying a full set of sail and manned by wise statesmen."

We entreat the Honorable Elijah W. Halford, who is famous as a warbler and a friend of the muses, to induce the Honorable Benjamin Harrison to give this poet a consulship somewhere. Anything to get him out of the country.—Sun.

I'll ask for him a consulship that sails among the stars,
To the middle of the vasty blue beyond all harbor bars,
And it shall be my chariot of fire, ne'er held in tow,
That's likely to go up sky-high, but may go down below. E. W. H.

——"Some whip, heap horsee glang!"

HUM OF THE COURT.

LAST WORDS of Grover Cleveland—"I am in the best of health."

"HE WAS a good man," says a correspondent, speaking of one who recently died. "Requiescat in Omaha."

QUESTION ATTENDING every theatrical marriage—Love match, or scriptural experiment for advertising purposes?

BIRCHALL says his posthumous work is not written to get fame. So far as it fails in that line the better for his surviving relatives.

THE PRICE paid for the McAllister book by the publishers is the only amusing thing in it; and that isn't half as amusing as it is sad.

YOUNG STEPHANI, having been adjudged insane, is happy. It would have been as much as his life was worth to have his wits about him.

HOW E. F. S. makes himself great:

We love him for his quips and cranks,
His sprightly, winning wiles;
How sweet and gay his prinks and pranks,
The which the world beguiles—
And he is happiest when he weeps,
And saddest when he smiles.

WE THOUGHT from the heavy pre-election storms that the prohibitionists would carry everything; and they did, as usual—everything but the ballot-boxes.

LITTLE TOM GRADY came up in Ohio too. What he wanted to say was that the remark that he was dead and buried was premature by at least five minutes.

THE MARLBOROUGHS, according to some accounts, have reached that lofty breeding which enables them to enjoy themselves contentedly at the expense of everybody else.

"JOHNNY" HOPE, pardoned by Governor Hill, is believed to have been innocent. "That's what hurts me," says "Jimmy" Hope, his father. "Johnny had a good chance to be guilty, and he ought to've kept his reputation."

A VALUABLE RETRIEVER.

VISITOR—"What do you call your dog, sir?"
SHENANDOAH CRACKER—"Winchester."
VISITOR—"Indeed?"
SHENANDOAH CRACKER—"Yes, sah. When they's any shootin' goin' on he's allus twenty miles away.'

IT IS A COMMON thing in European cabinets to commence the discussion of the day with the question, "What has Murat Halstead to say on this subject?" and if there is no satisfactory response the question is dropped with sickening suddenness.

SARA APPEARS in five different costumes as Cleopatra, each of them consisting of a piece of cloth six yards long. As a drama in behalf of the economical principle—and we do not include Sara's bodily sinuosity—this drama cannot be too highly praised.

IT IS A GREAT thing for a man to preserve his equanimity in a theatre at the same time that his loud talk has taken away that of the actors and half the house; but we should think he would be afraid of a horse-whip, and redden with chagrin because he had fairly earned one.

A CHANGE OF FRONT.

MR. SWEETSER (on a southern trip)—"Say, you black dog-robber! what son of a sea-cook did you put in my lower berth?"
THE PORTER—"'Xcuse me, sah, I's"——
MR. SWEETSER—"I'm not taking any excuses. Rout the cheeky codger out, and be quick about it!"

——(One second later)—"Hold on! never mind. Shake up upper five, and I'll sleep there."

THE OLD HOMESTEAD.

(To Den. Thompson.)

HAIL! quaint portrayer of the native soul
And heart which swell beneath the homespun coat,
And restive, lion-like, spurn all control,
But fly obedient to want's weakest note.
Thy love like flowers beneath New England's snows
Waiting the spring-time on the granite hills;
Ready thy tears as spring-time's overflow
When hearts are melted with some other's ills.

Such were the early stock of sturdy sires,
Weary of tyrants and law's slow delays,
Who built along the hills the beacon-fires
That, spreading fast, set all the world ablaze.
No knightly panoply was theirs; just simple folk
In homespun garb, whose charity was broad
As their own hearthstones, whose ascending smoke
Rose as a thankful incense up to God.

A nation thanks thee, Thompson, for the proof
That there be homely scenes we might portray,
And native virtues now kept far aloof,
Grand as our lakes or vast Niagara;
And where the tawdry mimes rehearse a dream
With tinsel armor and a sword of lead,
And padded panders prance and spangles gleam,
Give us an honest thought or laugh instead.

A. T. WORDEN.

THE NEW BRAND.

"IS YOUR husband a great smoker?"
"Yes; he's hardly ever without a cigar in his mouth."
"High-priced cigars too, I presume?"
"Yes; nothing but McKinleys."

MISLEADING.

Freddy Fangle—"Papa, couldn't the old patriarchs afford to buy their clothes?"

Fangle—"Certainly. Why?"

Freddy Fangle—"Because the bible says, 'They rent their garments.'"

AN UNPLEASANT FEATURE.

TWO professional blind beggars.

"I say, Bill, what makes me that disgusted with this biz I could chuck it up any day is, that bein' supposed to have lost the use of our heyes we can't kick the slightest kick when some bloke goes and drops a bogus coin inter the 'at and then prances off lookin' vartuous, like as if he'd gone an' done a hact o' charity."

THE NEW YORK LUNCHEON.

Stranger (from Syracuse)—"Does Lawyer Pettibone go home to his dinner at noon?"

Clerk—"No, sir; Mr. Pettibone wouldn't have the time to spend in the busiest part of the day."

Stranger—"How long has he been out to luncheon now?"

Clerk—"Oh, about three hours."

AVENGING A SLIGHT.

TOMMY LIVERMORE (at his brother's wedding)—"I reckon when he finds that he'll wish he'd invited me along with th' rest."

ONE WAY TO TAKE IT.

MRS. BURKEY—"Jonathan Burkey, you stop annoyin' your poor old grandpop or you'll git th' slipper 'plied to yer."

JONATHAN—"I ain't 'noyin' him. He's goin' t' take a pill fer his rheumatiz, an' he asked me t' blow it down his throat with my bean-shooter."

FEARED TO OVERDO THE MATTER.

ON INDEPENDENCE day a package of torpedoes was given to little Lilian to celebrate with. After a time she was discovered looking for soft uncovered places between the flagging on which to drop them. Being asked why she did so she answered, "So they won't make so much noise."

MOONSHINE.

THE moon shines down for two short weeks
And then a rest a while it seeks,
While on the clouds the fairies sit
And try to shine it up a bit.

UNCONSCIOUS HUMOR.

She—"Is there any humor in Ward McAllister's book?"

He—"Not that he knows of."

TOOK IT OUT IN TRADE.

"DID that bogus minister ever pay back that four dollars he borrowed of you?"
"No—ye—that is, I took it out in trade."
"In trade?"
"Yes; I had him marry me."

LITTLE TIN SAINTS.

Mary—"It has gone so far that no respectable people read the newspapers now."

Anne—"That's a fact. Did you ever read anything like that divorce case in the Evening Moon?"

Mary—"No; I never did."

NOW'DAYS.

NOW'DAYS Joseph's acting strange. He
Wears his best clothes days together;
Got some boots with patent-leather
On 'em; buys perfumery;
Bought a hat that cost a dollar;
Went and got a fancy-shade
Necktie and a stand-up collar.
What's the matter? Nancy Wade.

Now'days Joseph gets around more
Lively; goes to hear the speaking
Every Sunday, and goes sneaking
Sunday nights around the church door.
Joined the choral union, when he
Never sung a note nor played
Anything, I guess, but penny
Jew's-harps. 'Cause of Nancy Wade.

Now'days Joseph's got a new style
Single cutter; and he brushes
Up and scours things. And he blushes
Ler her come within a mile.
Can't so much as stand the mention
Of Elisha Poole—he paid
Something like a little attention,
'Way last year, to Nancy Wade.

Now'days Joseph's looking round and
Pricing furniture, and buying
Timber and the like, and slying
Round about the price of land.
Now'days Joseph's right in clover;
Thinks the universe was made
For they two. He's bubbling over
Now'days, and so's Nancy Wade.

A. OPPER.

ART CALLED TO ACCOUNT.

UNCLE GASTON (at "The battle of Gettysburg")—"'Tain't kerrect, Ashbel 'tain't kerrect."

HIS NEPHEW—"What is wrong with it, uncle?"

UNCLE GASTON—"See that fir-tree down near th' stun-wall? Well, I wuz behind it durin' th' hull fight, an' (convincingly) where be I in th' pictur'?"

FORCED POLITENESS.

MRS. TENNANT—"Isn't there some mistake, doctor? I thought my engagement was for ten o'clock."

BRIERTON (whose toothache has left him suddenly)—"Y-yes; I'm to b-blame, madam. P-permit me to offer you my s-seat."

HARD TO DETERMINE.

"HE IS very haughty in his bearing, but I understand he has no money."

"But don't you like to see a man have some natural dignity?"

"Yes; only it's difficult sometimes to tell whether it's dignity or a stiff neck."

COULDN'T SEE THE DIFFERENCE.

Negro porter (to lady boarder)—"Ef Mistah Muggins don't stop his flirtin' wi' Miss Fannie I's gwine to rit his wife a unanimous lettah, I is."

Lady boarder (laughing)—"You mean anonymous, don't you?"

Negro porter (scratching his head)—"I reck'n dey mean 'bout d' same."

SHE COULDN'T.

New housemaid—"There's a leddy down-stairs wants ter see yer, Mrs. Gazzam."

Mrs. Gazzam—"Show her up."

New housemaid—"Faith, an' I don't know anythin' agin her, mum. I niver laid eyes on her before."

NATURE'S COURSE.

"OH, AUNTIE, Harry has a tooth!" shouted little Gertie, "and there is another one coming." Then continuing and counting, "And after that he will get another and then another and then—(pausing and recollecting her own experience) he can have one pulled out."

A STREET-CAR IDYL.

THOUGH she is most uncommon fair,
I do not care a rap;
She looks quite lovely swaying there
While holding to the strap.

WHAT MAY BE EXPECTED.

Patient—"Can I see Dr. Curem?"

Servant—"The doctor is smoking an imported cigar, sir, and cannot be disturbed."

CHICAGO ETHICS.

He—"Will you not name the day next month, my dear?"

She—"Oh, Henry, let's put it off until a few weeks later. My November weddings have been unlucky from the start."

AN ORNATE BANDAGE.

MCMANUS—"Tare an' 'ouns! Who did thot?"

MRS. MCMANUS—"Whisht, dar-rlin'! Th' pig had a shtummick-ache, an' it wor a quistion phether we cilibrated our Christmis dinner or Parthrick's day wid th' most ent'usiasm."

"'RIAR."

JEST 'cause "'Riar" isn't slim,
Slender wrist an' taper limb—
Isn't built in fashion's style,
She hain't got no lover's smile.
No one hangs on "'Riar's" gate
Early morn an' moontime late;
No one sits by "'Riar's" side
When the evenin' shaders glide
Down the mountains in the west
When the sun has gone to rest.
"'Riar" milks her stint o' cows,
Charns the cream, an' then allows
She can darn the stockin's all
'Fore the harvesters they fall
Into line afore the feed
Sot out 'fore their hunger's need.
"'Riar" w'ars no hansum gown;
"'Riar's" eyes are gray—but brown
Is the color on her cheek,
Whar a lot o' freckles leak
All their spotness through her skin—
An' her arms hain't very thin.
Gals they marry, gals they go
On life's whirligig afro.
God bless "'Riar's" common ways!
She don't go; for "'Riar" stays
On the farm to cheer our best
Old-day years, when all the rest
Flaunt an' flaunter far away
Like a lost-dream's summer day.

H. S. KELLER.

A LOST ANATHEMA.

MRS. GILLOOLY (aside)—"She'll hear pfwhat Oi t'ink av her now. Oi see her eye at th' kay-hole. (Very loud)—Av all th' phryin', mischeevous, gallywhanglin' ould shpit-cats Oi iver seen, Missus Cornalius Shaughnessy av wan hundry an' thorty-foorst shtreet an' th' railroad is th' woorst!"

BY A DREAMER.

THERE are but two epochs in a man's life. The first that of hope and youthful illusions, when he wears his hair brushed behind his ears and leaves it wildly floating in the breeze. The second when, gloomy and dejected, he has finally subscribed to Solomon's edict, Vanitas vanitorum, and pulls his thinned locks mournfully over his eyebrows.

A SIRE FROM 'WAY BACK.

Mrs. Grosvenor—"Your daughter tells me that the founder of your family came over with the conqueror."

Mr. Darcy (from Arizona)—"No, mum; she's way off. Why, he'd done fenced in his claim an' cut two craps of alfalfy afore that feller ever seed the steerage."

ANOTHER POINT.

Bloobumper—"Here's another point of superiority of man over woman."

Mrs. Bloobumper—"Well?

Bloobumper—"Many men are self-made, but most women are tailor-made."

IN FOR A GOOD TIME.

Ethel (surprised)—"Why, Carrie! What are you having the house decorated for?"

Carrie—"You see, ma and pa are away, and we intend to make the most of their absence. To-night we have a dance, to-morrow a card-party, next night prayer-meeting—they'll be home then."

CONSIDERABLY BIFURCATED.

CUSTOMER—"What size would you recommend for a beginner?"

DEALER—"Well, young feller, if you're the beginner I'd say you'd have a better time on a rainbow than anythin' else."

A DULL WIT.

"IS HAWKINS a bright student?"

"Naw; he couldn't pass an examination in the college yell."

MALICE AFORETHOUGHT.

He—"Everybody raves over her."

She—"Yes; she'd make a splendid impression at a lunatic asylum."

IN THE DARK.

THE hall was dark. I heard
The rustle of a skirt.
"Ha-ha!" thought I, "I'll catch
You now, my little flirt!"

Softly I sallied forth,
Resolved when I had kissed her
That I'd make her believe
I'd thought it was my sister.

The deed was done. Oh, bliss!
Could any man resist her?
Apology was made—
Alas! it was my sister!

to him, very time he shows his head."

THE STRIKE OF THE APPLE-TREES.

"HEIGHO!" a gnarled old apple-tree cried,
As it stood in the blooming orchard wide;
"I'm sick of standing here robbed and mute,
To see each season my beautiful fruit
Devoured by an old red cider-mill,
And its juice run through a nasty old still
To swell the head of Farmer Dutell,
Or purse whenever the stuff he can sell.
I move we app'e-trees strike!"

The trees all murmured, "Why, sure enough!
Now you come to mention it, it is rough,
Although we hadn't thought of it before,
We'll strike and submit to the outrage no more!"
And then each beautiful blooming tree
Applauded, shaking so vigorously
That all their blossoms without a sound
Fell prematurely down to the ground.

When came the time for apples to "set,"
The farmer, a hardy, grizzled old vet,
Went out in his orchard for to see
What promise it offered for "orchard tea."
Behold! there wasn't a single "set"!
The farmer "spoke out in meetin'," you bet.
He saw undoubtedly he must go
Without his cider all winter, you know.

The trees on strike like loafers stood 'round,
No earthly use but to cumber the ground.
The farmer remarked, with mind astute,
"The bizness of apple-trees is tu b'ar fruit;
I ain't a keepin' 'em jest fer show,
'Nd I reckon some of 'em better go.
That old back-number thar ain't no good
Exceptin' it may be fer fire-wood."

The gnarled old tree that the strike had led
When it felt the axe of the farmer said,
As it shivered, "Alas! how could I make
In my old age such a fatal mistake?"
If I had attended to my biz
And left old Dutell to manage his
I might have lived yet many a day,
Instead of perishing in this way."

The other trees took the whole thing in;
With fright they nearly shook out of their skin.
It was a lesson they'll never forget,
And cider next fall will be plenty, you bet!

WILLIAM EDWARD PENNEY.

INCURABLE.

OFFICER—"He's pretty wild, sir. Thinks he owns th' world."
JUSTICE—"What's his business?"
OFFICER—"He's been janitor of a down-town office-building."

THE INK WAS NOT INDELIBLE.

PARDINGTON (at his hotel)—"It's wonderful what an amount of good a simple wet towel will do for a man's head. I can meet old Cashup as straight as a string now."

——(Down-town a half-hour later)—"Ah! good-morning, sir. Fine crisp morning, isn't it?"

ENCORE.

GRANDMOTHER ELIZA had slipped at the head of the basement stairs, fallen to the bottom, and was taken up unconscious. After restoratives had been applied, the doctor summoned, and a liberal use made of bandages and plasters, little Sue came over to the house, took a grave survey of the sufferer, ran and made an examination of the fatal stair, then returned to the old lady saying, "Oh, grandma! do it again! do it again!"

"I DO LIKE crying children!"
The bachelor said. "And why,"
A friend asked, "should you like them?"
"They're sent out when they cry."

VERY GROSS RECEIPTS.

"WHAT were your gross receipts last year?" said a lover of statistics to a popular actress; and she, who had counted her gain in flesh fearfully day by day, answered mournfully, "Ninety-eight pounds."

DID NOT WANT IT SPOILED.

"MRS. LARKIN," remarked the minister, "we wish you would let your daughter join the choir."

"Oh, I couldn't think of it!" replied Mrs. Larkin; "she has a sweet disposition, and I don't want her to become quarrelsome."

THE MATRIMONIAL MARKET AFFECTED.

Chicago daughter—"Pa, Baron le Grande and Prince Joinville have both asked my hand in marriage."

Father—"Two months ago, my child, I could have bought you the prince, but I'm afraid a baron is all I can afford to-day."

Chicago daughter—"Pa, your business has suffered no serious shock, has it?"

Father—"No, daughter; but under the McKinley bill foreign importations have gone 'way up."

OUR FUTURE DIPLOMATS.

Mother—"Didn't I tell you you couldn't go nutting and climb that great tall tree?"

Dick Kuteone—"Do you suppose I'd go then, when you told me not to?"

Mother—"How did you get all those butternut stains on your hands then?"

Dick Kuteone—"Ah—well—you see, Jim wore his butternut jeans, and it rained, and we ended up our walk with a sort of wrestling-match."

Then he and his maternal relative had another, in which the worsted slipper was not worsted.

Now unto the Yankee sovereign speeches sonorous are uttered,
With intent to show said sovereign on which side his bread is buttered;
While in columns double-leaded and with wisdom overflowing
He is shown just why he prospers, or to what his loss is owing.

And the wise man hears the speeches, gives the paper careful reading,
All the pros and cons and pointers of the teachers gravely heeding.
But he knows without inquiring of economists or scholars
That the way for him to prosper is to work and save his dollars. —Warren (Ohio) Tribune.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING!
Sixteen Polished Gem Stones Given Away Free.

DOES IT NOT SEEM STRANGE when, in these progressive days, more is offered for a dollar than it seems possible to give, yet it seems stranger when all that is promised is given. Our offer is made to interest you in THE GREAT DIVIDE, an illustrated monthly Journal describing the resources and doings of the Rocky Mountain country and the Great West, and to obtain many new subscribers quick. Our guarantee is, money will be refunded if you are not perfectly satisfied. A collection of minerals is always attractive and valuable to all thinking people, but is valueless excepting the pleasure in studying the minerals. We cite this simply to forcibly impress on your mind that the collection of semi-precious stones which we are going to give you are not rough mineral specimens, but cut and polished gems, ready to be mounted in rings, brooches, or any other form of jewelry. Here is a list of what we will send you:

CAMEO, finely cut, can be used for ring, scarfpin or brooch set.
GOLDSTONE, can be used for ring or scarfpin.
TIGER EYE, can be used for ring, scarfpin, or brooch.

The twelfth is a Mosaic about twice the size of cut, but oblong in shape, with a Mosaic centre cut ready to be mounted for a watch charm to be set with a compass, and its value is $1. Each additional gem is honestly worth 50 cents in any jewelry store, but we make you a present of the whole selection if you send us $1 this month for a year's subscription to THE GREAT DIVIDE, and promise to show the paper to your friends and neighbors, and ask them to subscribe. Express charges paid to your home. This offer is made for new subscribers only. Address your letters plainly, THE GREAT DIVIDE PUBLISHING COMPANY, 1630 Larimer Street, Denver, Colorado.
